

Ramsey Fakhouri (cook) & Charlotte Smith being silly

Written By Chelsea Boucher

not your average bar

And the name continues, that's right another Boucher writing stories on the bar life I thought the magazine could use a female's perspective. Anyways... you may remember seeing an article a few magazines back that I did over at Three Dollar Dewey's in Portland, ME. And I hope you enjoyed it because you're going to start seeing more of my stuff whether it's in Portland, Me or somewhere out west. Of course, to my friends who know me well in Maine they won't be shocked when they read my first story on Nosh Kitchen bar. I spent a lot of time at this bar in college and if you know Portland at all that probably sounds odd to you considering you would find all the college kids on Wharf street which is a few blocks away. I couldn't help but find myself at Nosh on a Thursday night watching the Bruins or Red Sox. Something about the atmosphere there has you feeling some sort of way or as Charlotte Smith one of the bartenders and waitresses would say "it's hard to not have a smile on your face, everybody's always having a good time, customers and staff". I couldn't agree with her more, I can't tell you how many times I've walked in to waitresses dancing and cooks singing all with smiles on their faces. And ladies

Charlotte and Faith Currier

Liz Mancini discussing the menu with a customer let me tell you Adam Taub can make a killer Lemon drop martini and I mean just look at him that's just extra. Michael Rotunno former employee of Nosh Kitchen Bar still finds his way in to share some laughs with old employees and some of Nosh's regulars. If there's one item on the food menu I would recommend, it would be their fries they have a few different flavors but my favorite is the bacon dusted. Nosh is also very well known for their burgers I mean how many places can you go and get a burger with two donuts as the buns yes DONUTS! Although I haven't built up the appetite for that specific burger yet I have tried the Mac n Stack and that's a burger with mac and cheese patty's as the buns and it does not disappoint. If you're hungry and want to bring your appetite they serve a full menu until 1am and while we still can and fall creeps in you can enjoy your food and drinks on their outdoor patio! Let them know Chelsea sent you from Tavern Players Magazine.

Adam Taub
pouring a lemon drop martini

Cheers!

Michael Rotunno

DONUT BURGER!

Check out their website at www.noshkitchenbar.com
for more information!